

SORRY ABOUT YOUR DAUGHTER

BIOGRAPHY

Washington, D.C.'s Sorry About Your Daughter emerged from the 1990s alternative/post-hardcore underground with a sound that fused sharp hooks, emotional weight, melodic tension, and raw guitar energy. Formed in 1992, the band built its reputation the old-fashioned way: through relentless touring in the U.S. and Europe, strong live performances, and a growing word-of-mouth following within the underground rock scene.

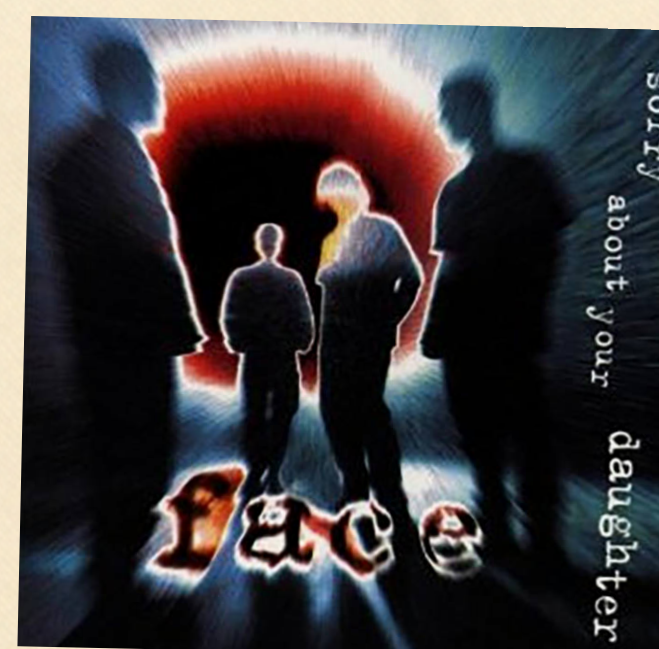

During their run, the band released two full-length albums, including Face on Marlboro Music/Edel, a record that helped define their melodic but volatile sound. Face was recorded at Inner Ear Studio with Don Zientara (Fugazi/Bad Brains) and produced by John Avila of Oingo Boingo, placing the band within a lineage familiar to fans of intelligent, guitar-driven alternative music with both edge and substance.

Sorry About Your Daughter gained international attention through video and airplay exposure, with "Scapegoat" and "You Gave Up" receiving rotation on MTV Europe and VIVA. Over the years, the band also shared bills with major artists including Joan Jett, Ice-T & Body Count, Alice Cooper, Scorpions, 311, and many others, reflecting both their versatility and the broad appeal of their live show.

Now, after years away, the band has returned with renewed momentum. Their 2026 Germany tour marks both a reunion and an anniversary moment: 30 years since the release of Face and 30 years since their last German tour, when they performed alongside the notable German crossover band Freaky Fukin Weirdoz. For longtime fans, it is the return of a cult favorite; for newer listeners, it is a chance to discover a band whose music still sounds urgent, melodic, and emotionally charged.
